

Abstract

Adhesive coated film is applied to a surface, especially an irregular surface, by use of heat and a heat-neutral pressure source. The film is softened to 5 permit it to re-form in conformity with the surface without harming the film at the point of application. Applicators are also disclosed, such that considerable labor savings and improved quality can be achieved over conventional techniques.